

crowd, two men sympathized with them and interested in their behalf. "They were then escorted to the railroad station," continues the report, "and told never to return there again. They will pay no attention to the fact that this will be everything in fact and there is no more talk of war. They will endeavor to place their ideas before them."

BERKMAN APPEARED AS A HERO.
That the anarchists are in heavy sympathy with the attempt to kill Frick and appeal Berkman as a hero, was made evident at a meeting held at Long Branch City on Sunday.

The party assembled in the open air and erected a platform of four logs for the speaker. One of the orators, who said he favored arbitration rather than force, was dragged off the platform and killed about midday. Another speaker claimed that a band of anarchists had been formed, who were bound by solemn oaths to see that Frick was killed. A woman who was present threatened the crowd and the meeting was adjourned by the leader firing a pistol into the air.

"The 'Plovers' of Liberty," was issued a circular. Berkman belonged, he issued a circular declaring that the statements of one Louis Kroll, 90 Henry street, in regard to the doings of Berkman are utterly false. The "Plovers" denounce him as an "infamous informer" who wanted to revenge himself upon Berkman because about two years ago the latter gave him a good thrashing for letting a lady, Kroll has been expelled from the "Plovers."

Supt. O'Mara Talks.

Superintendent of Police Roger O'Mara, of Pittsburgh, who has successfully dodged the reporters since coming to New York, yesterday consented to be interviewed by an Evening World reporter. He was found in Inspector Stern's private room.

"I am in New York for two objects," he said. "I brought my daughter here to have her eyes treated, and I also want to get information about Berkman to be used during his trial."

"We have no positive evidence as yet that Berkman was aided by conspirators, but from my experience with criminals I think he had. An anarchist's chief delight is to be an agent, and I don't think Berkman was an exception. If there was a conspiracy I believe it was hatched in New York."

"The police in this city are at work on several cases, and I think that some important arrests will be made."

"Berkman is a remarkably bright man, and was as good under arrest as any criminal I ever met. Just after the shooting I questioned him about it, and he was familiar with every detail."

"You must have four times, I said, to see if he could be trapped. 'Only three times,' he replied, positively."

"He told me every movement he made with the knife, but when I asked him about his friends he was as dumb as an ox. He can speak fairly good English and is well educated."

"Kroll may have been in the plot, but I do not think Kroll was. They will both be valuable witnesses and will be held for that purpose."

"I think Kroll had something to do with the plot, but the officers in Pittsburgh are more alert than I am."

"The police and the Pittsburghers all want to find Berkman's fellow-conspirators, and there will probably be several important arrests shortly."

Supt. O'Mara is well known by Supt. Byrne and Inspector Stern, and he bears the reputation of being a sharp officer.

The Long Branch Suspect Caught.

LONG BRANCH, July 26.—Capt. Layton was not satisfied with the statement at Long Branch, that R. M. Mollack, a man who had been employed by the Adams Express company, was the man who shot Frick, and he had been arrested.

At 4 o'clock this morning Capt. Layton again entered the bakery and told that Mollack was the man who shot Frick. The baker's woman had told him that Mollack was the man who shot Frick.

man in Middle's bakery because he could earn better wages there than in the city. He first met Berkman at Wilson's Assembly Room, 85 East Fourth street, New York, which was a sort of employment agency for bakers. Mollack said when he was asked of employment and problems and hungry Berkman loaned him money, which he repaid. This, he said, was why when Berkman wrote to him from Allegheny City asking for a loan of $10 he sent him by Adams Express $5, which was all he could spare. He was really a kindness, he said.

He did not know much about Berkman in New York, but he had worked in the printer's office and came sometimes to the assembly room.

Baker Mollack said Mollack came from New York to be Berkman's baker. Mollack said that he knew nothing about him, only that he was a faithful worker. When Capt. Layton called to arrest Mollack at midnight Mollack said he thought a man who worked for him three days and who left Sunday night, was the man who shot Berkman.

Capt. Layton will take Mollack to the County Jail at Freedom at noon today.
